Before the Federal Communications Commission FCC 85-245
Washington, D. C. 20554 35747

In the Matter of

Authorization of spread spectrum and other wideband emissions not presently provided for in the FCC Rules and Regulations.

GEN DOCKET NO. 81-413

FIRST REPORT AND ORDER

Released: May 24, 1985

Adopted: May 9, 1985
By the Commission:

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY

1. Spread spectrum modulation is a wideband modulation which was originally developed for military applications but which has several interesting civil applications ^{1/}. This technology has been implicitly forbidden by the FCC rules with a few limited exceptions. On June 30, 1981, the Commission adopted a Notice of Inquiry ("Inquiry") ^{2/} in this proceeding seeking comments on a rule structure that would permit civil use of this technology ^{1/}.
